that none of the family had been seen for some little time, and upon opening the apartments the head of the family, his wife and his child were found dead in the rooms. Judging from the condition of the rooms it is evident that the man first killed his wife and child by cutting their throats and then killed himself in the same manner. The wounds inflicted are terrible ones. No

The Prince of Wales' Appearance To-Day on the Witness Stand.

LONDON GREATLY AGITATED OVER THE BACCARAT SCANDAL IN COURT.

cluded This Morning Sir Charles Russell Scores His First Advantage—The Prince of Wales Testifies-Fashionables

Loxpox, June 2 .- The second day of the LoxDon, June 2.—The second day of the famous trial, otherwise the suit for damages brought by Sir William Gordon-Cumming against Mr. and Mrs. Lycett Green, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wilson and Mr. Berkeley Levett for slander, commenced this morning a about 11 o'clock with an almost complet repetition of the scenes witnessed yesterda; at the opening of this cause celebre. If any bench division of Her Majesty's high court of everybody looked forward to being able to stand and to hearing the testimony which he would give in regard to the gambling which took place at the Wilson residence at Tranby-Croft near Doncaster on Sept. 8 and 9, 1899. The crowd outside and inside the new law courts, especially about the Queen's Bench division, were good-natured and orderly, redivision, were good-natured and orderly, requiring little admonition from the strong force of policemen on hand. Long before 11 o'clock, the hour fixed upon for the official reopening of the court, all of the seats allotted to the favored few were filled apprently by the same bright, fashionable, gaily-dressed audience which enlivened the grim-looking law court yesterday. Many people, profiting by their abstinence of yesterday, had evidently provided themselves to-day with sundry mild refreshments of a solid and of a liquid nature, which they carried in pretty little baskets half conthey carried in pretty little baskets half con-cealed by flowers, books, newspapers and opera-glasses. Thus armed and equipped the ladies and gentlemen who are so deeply in-terested in the baccarat scandal prepared for another day of this new sensation

When the Prince of Wales and his Private when the Pinde of whee and his rivate Secretary, Sir Francis Knollys, entered the court-room this morning with most com-mendable punctuality everybody in the court rose to their feet and ceased speaking. The Prince, who looked as good natured as ever, even if he seemed somewhat preoccupied, bowed slightly right and left to the specta-tors, nodded smilingly to one or two intitors, nodded smilingly to one or two inti-mates whom he recognized and took the ame seat, a red cushioned arm chair on the eft hand of Loru Chief Justice Coleridge, which he occupied yesterday. On the Judge's right hand were seated Ladies Coloridge, Clarke and Russell, the wives respectively of the Lord Chief Justice Sir Edward Clarke, the solicitor-General, leading counsel for the plaintiff, and of Sir Charles Russell, the leadplaintiff, and of Str Charles Russell, the leading counsel for the defendents. The ladies smiled and chatted together as pleasantly as if they had been at a matinee or at a pleasure party, instead of spectators at a trial involving the honor and entire future of a man who, as his worst enemies admit, has been a gallant soldier. Lady Brooke, whose name was added to the list of Mrs. Arthur Wilson's invited guests at Tranby Croft during the eventful Doncaster meeting of September last, eventful Doncaster meeting of Septemberlast, was among those present at the trial this Lady Brooke was among the early arrivals, as was Col. H. H. D. Stracey, the commanding officer of the Scots Guards of which regiment Sir Wm. Gordon-Cumming was a major and Heutenant-colonel. But next to the Prince of Wales and Sir Wm. Gordon-Cumming, Lady Brooke was the center of attraction, almost every lorgnette and opera-glass in the court being leveled persis-tently at her, a fact which did not seem in the slightest degree to disturb her supreme

THE PLAINTIFF. The entrance of the plaintiff did not attract so much attention to-day as it did yesterday. He was as cool and calm as ever, and on his soldier-like face there was not the slightest trace of emotion or of the effects of the ordeal through which he passed yesterday. Like his former friend, the Prince of Wales, Sir William was perfectly dressed, booted and gloved, and there was no denying that an air of quiet distinction could be seen in his every.

"something of that sort to Mrs. Berkeley Levett." This caused another sensation in court, and it seemed to be admitted without a word being spoken on the subject that counsel for the defendant had scored his first real decided advantage in the legal tilt which had been going on two days between himself and the soldier baronet in the witness-box. Sir Charles Russell did not seem to notice the advantage he had gained, but, on the contrary, appeared to be desirous of leading the jury's attention away from this damaging admission and, consequently, branched off into a lengthy and somewhat uninteresting cross-examination of the plaintiff concerning certain letters, and after

ROTAL TESTINONY.

The Prince of Wales was then called and occupied the seat in the witness box just vacated by the piaintiff. In reply to Sir Edward Clarke, Chief Counsel for the prosecution, the Prince testified that he had known the piaintiff, Sir Wm. Gordon Cumming for twenty years. Sir William had for ten years been his intimate friend and had visited him at Sandringham several times. Continuing his testimony, the Prince of Wales said that his intimate with the piaintiff had continued unimpaired up to September of last year. During the visit of himself and party to Tranby Croft to attend the races, witness had observed nothing to excite suspicion in the conduct or bearing of the plaintiff. He had observed nothing to excite suspicion in the conduct or bearing of the plaintiff. He had first been informed of the circulation of reports derogatory to the character of SirWm.
Gordon-Cumming by Lord Coventry. These reports intimated unfair play by the plaintiff. The Prince then recited how the sad event had resulted in the breaking up of the party assembled at Tranby Croft. Before leaving Mr. Wilson's residence witness had sent to his private secretary sigsent to his private secretary, Sir Francis, Knollys, for safekeeping a statement in connection with the case which was signed by three of the gentlemen and two of the ladies who were present. Sir Francis was not aware of the nature of the statement and had not seen Sir Wm. Gordon-Cumming until after the gentleman had been interviewed by Gen. Williams and Lord Coventry and had denied the truth of the charge to him (witness). When witness heard the story of Sir William's alleged wrong doing, Gen. Williams and Lord Coventry prepared and handed to him a precise account of the occurrence. This concluded the evidence of the Prince on direct examination. statement and had not seen Sir Wm. Gor

CROSS-EXAMINED. The doubts of the audience as to whether the Prince would be subjected to cross-examination were quickly set at rest by Sir Charles Russell rising to question the distinguished witness. In reply to questions by Sir Charles the Prince testified that he believed he had also seen in this connection Prince Edward and Capt. Somerset, in addition to the three gentlemen to whom certain statements had b made by three other gentlemen of the party.
Witness was not informed that two ladies, whom he had not seen at the time, alleged that they also had witnessed dishonest play by the plaintiff. He did not recollect whether any one of the not reconsect whether any one of the three gentlemen said anything about with-drawing a portion of the stakes or that Sir William had systematically placed on the board a larger stake than had originally been placed there. Continuing, the Prince stated that the suggestion that a memorandum of the unfortunate affair be prepared and submitted to Sir William for his signature, did not come from him. It was simply a proposition made by Lord Coventry in which witness acquiesced. Witness was greatly distressed by quiesced. Witness was greatly distressed by the occurrence. Referring to the interview had by him with Sir William in the presence tiff asked him whether he believed the st ments made against him. Witness did recollect his reply. Witness was certain that plaintiff intimated his willingness to have the atter referred to the Duke of Cambridge.

THE PRINCE'S LENIENCY. In reply to this suggestion Gen. Williams hinted that the Duke of Cambridge might not regard the affair as leniently as Sir William's other friends. The Prince further declared that he had, out of regard for Sir William Gordon Cumming, desired to act as leniently as was possible under the circumstances. The date of the document submitted to Sir William was omitted at the time of

When the Lord Chief Justice had given the signal for the day's proceedings to commence the plaintiff stepped into the witness box and prepared to answer the questions of Sir Charles Russell. The latter began by reading a letter written by the plaintiff in answer to the letter addressed to him jointly by the Frince of Wales, Lord Coventry and Gen. Owen Williams. The missive was addressed to "Dear Owen," and in it Sir William said that he had now but little hope before him to make life worth living, adding: "In the meantime I suppose that I must try to live as of old years."

Pressed by the cross-examining questions of Sir Charles Russell the plaintiff said that he took the present legal proceedings because the baccarat scandal had become a public matter of conversation and comment.

And there we unfortenate currence are under investing attent in the future.

The reply was delivered with somewhat of emphasis, and created a sensation.

QUESTIONED BY A JUEOR.

When Sir Charles Russell had concluded his cross-examination and after Sir Edward (larke, on behalf of the prosecution, had with courtly grace assured the Prince that he would not be detained one moment longer than was absolutely necessary, then came the solicitor General finished his deprecatory sentence when a juryman after unexpectedly indicating his desire that the witness should not leave the box, proceeded calmly and deliberately to examine him as follows:

Prince of Wales: "It is not a very easy matter for the banker when dealing to see anything of that indicating his desire that the witness should not leave the box, proceeded calmly and deliberately to examine him as follows:

THE SUGAR BEET CROP.

LONDON. June 2.—Advices received her from the sugar beet growing districts of Germany, Austria, France and Belgium show that the planting of the beets was delayed three weeks by the general prevalence of rains. During May the weather was more rains. During May the weather was more favorable to the growing crop, especially in Germany, where the plants are in a promising condition. About $27,000 bectares have been planted to sugar beets. Germany shows an increase in her acreage of 5 per cent, Austria from 8 to 19 per cent, and Belgium and France each from 10 to 15 per cent. The increase acreage in France is largely due to the fact that cornfields that had been ruined by the heavy rains were replowed and seeded to beets. The average increase in the acreage throughout Europe is 7 per cent. Further favorable weather reports were received yesterday, and as a consequence prices declined. Some estimates of the crop place the yield at 3,750,000 tons, while others place it at over 4,900,000 tons. These figures, ho wever, are without practical value, as the next crop will not be safe for two months yet. It is improbable ate for two months yet. ## DECIDED AT LAST.

The Western Union's Suit Against the First Electric Light Company.

THE PLAINTIPF VICTORIOUS AFTER FIVE YEARS OF LITIGATION.

A Monopoly of the Atmosphere Granted in the Decision Sustained by the Court of Appeals-Charles Green Settles as Obey Owens' Bondsman and Pays $15, 000-Other Court Matters.

An opinion was handed down by the Cour of Appeals to-day in a case the history of which marks it as one of the most remarkable cases ever filed in the St. Louis Circuit Court. The case is that of the Western Union Telegraph Co. against the Guernsey & Scudder Electric Light Co., now the St. Louis Power Co. The suit was filed Dec. 24, 1885, and this is the first suit was filed Dec. 24, 1885, and this is the first decision of the Court of Appeals in the case. This was in the early days of electricity. Guernsy & Scudder Electric Co. strung its wires on the same poles used by the Western Union Telegraph Co., on Locust between Third and Fourth streets. Insulation was then very imperfect, and the Western Union applied for an injunction to restrain the Electric Co. from constructing electric currents over their wires, because of the danger by induction.

The case did not come up for hearing until being taken up in preparing fortrial. Testi-mony was taken in all parts of the country tending to throw light on elec-tricity, and when the case came up for trial electric wires and

After struggling with the mass of testimony, the dimensions of which can be gleaned by the fact that the transcript of the case covers 840 pages of closely written legal cap, for some months longer, Judge Lubke rendered a longer, Judge Lubke rendered a forbidding the Electric Light Co. from forbidding the Electric Light Co. from a tongue-lashing. He rushed down the aisle to the door and struck me with his fist in the door and struck me with his fist in the form of the door and struck me with his fist in the door and struck me with his fist in the first of the door and struck me with his fist in the door and struck me with his fist in the first of the door and struck me with his fist in the first of the door and struck me with his fist in the first of the door and struck me with his fist in the first of the door and struck me with his fist in the first of the door and struck me with his fist in the first of the door and struck me with his fist in the first of the door and struck me with his fist in the first of the door and struck me with his fist in the first of the door and struck me with his fist in the first of the door and struck me with his fist in the first of the door and struck me with his fist in the first of th ten legal cap, for some months longer, Judge Lubke rendered a decree forbidding the Electric Light Co. from stringing any wires over those of the Western Union on Locust between Third and Fourth, nearer than 8 feet, so as to avoid dangers from induction. Also requiring electric company to place a net work between wires of telegraph company and the electric company so as to prevent injury from falling electric light wires.

An appeal was taken, and the case went to the Court of Appeals and was argued before the Court of Appeals and was argued before that body. Judge Peers was a member of the Court of Appeals at that time, but his term ex-Court of Appeals at that time, but his term ex-piring he was succeeded by Judge Biggs. This caused further delay, Judge Biggs having to familiarize himself with the case, which hung in the upper court for over three years, the longest that ever a case remained in the Court of Appeals without a decision.

Finally the case was disposed of to-day, Judges Rombauer and Biggs affirming the decision of the Circuit Court and Judge Thompson, the third member of the Court of mentioned, is the most spacious building on Appeals, giving a dissenting opinion. As a reason for dissenting Judge Thompson says: "I agree with much of the reasoning of the foregoing opinion, but not with all of it I do not agree with its result. My the reason for not agreeing to the result is that the holding that the plaintiff was entitled to any equitable relief in this case set a precedent for enjoining a large portion of the electric light wires in the city and would give the CAUSE OF DELAY.

This seems to have been the cause of delay. Under the evidence an affirmation in the opinion of the judges had to be given, and with the increased knowledge acquired of electricity it did not seem the right thing to do. Another feature of the case is that the buildings consider the case is that the pulldings occupied by the litigating companies when the case was begun have since burned down, the cause of the fire being attributed to electric wires. The Guernsey & Scudder Co. was at 306 Locust, and the Western Union at Third and Olive. What the effect will be should the decision be taken advantage of to fight electric com-panies is hard to conjecture. It is generally understood that the fight for years in the case at issue was over costs, which are enormous. One transcript cost $475. The court divides the costs, the West-

Gold and silver workers, makers of fancy articles, lodginghouse keepers, bookbinders, agents, turners, hatters, officers, locksmiths, joiners, tutors, scientific men, Government clerks, three bakers, eighteen tailors, twenty-nine shoemakers and many other tradesmen live in it. The house has thirty-one staircases and fronts on three streets and one square. In one day the postman's delivery has amounted to as many as 1,000 pleces to this single but titanic house. To address a letter to the house and to the person it is intended for does not assure the sender that the person to whom it is addressed will ever receive it.

In order to 'make assurance doubly sure' all letters addressed to the 'Freihaus' must be provided with both the given and the surname of the person for whom intended, the number of the court, the number of the staircase and the number of the apartment; otherwise it is apt to go astray as though addressed to a city unprovided with directions as to street and number.

At the present time 2,112 persons live in this immense building and pay an annual rental of over 100,000 florins.

accede to the demand became riotous in the expression of their indignation. Finally, it set upon the contractor and beat him brutally, giving him a pair of black eyes and innumerable small cuts on the head and face.

A FAMOUS PICTURE.

Japan Has a Relic of Thirteenth-Century

The history of an ancient picture, which still exists and which was lately exhibited in Tokio, is given by the Japan Mail. In 1274 Kublai Kahn, afterward conqueror and Emperor of China, sent a large military and naval force against Japan, but that expedition was wholly unsuccessful, being repulsed was wholly loss. He took to heart this, his first, defeat by land or water, and when firmly established on the throne of China he sought to re-establish his prestige by dispatching an armada to chastise the islanders. The invading force is said to have consisted of 150,000 men—Coreans, Chinese and Mongolians.

by dispatching an armada to chastise insignaters. The invading force is said to have consisted of 150,000 men—Coreans, Chinese and Mongolians.

With a comparatively insignificant squadron the Japanese managed to hold their own in several fights against the huge Chinese ships, and while these indecisive battles were being waged a tempest wrought among the Chinese war ships havos similar to that which overtook the Spanish Armada off the coast of Great Britain. How many perished in the storm the records do not tell, but it is certain that the Japanese took full advantage of the event and, attacking the surviving Chinese ships before they could reassemble, destroyed them in detail. Chinese history avers that only three men out of the whole force managed to escape to China. To commemorate the great event Naganori and Nagataka, two skilled artists of the Tosa School, made a series of paintings.

There seems to be very little doubt that the pictures were finished in the year 1294, and that they were painted by order of and under the direct supervision of one of the principal captains of the Japanese forces, in whose family they have been handed down as heirlooms from generation to generation. Contained in two signantic scrolls, with lengthy written accounts of each incident depicted they constitute a unique historical record of the period. The scrolls differ in one respect from the ordinary pictures of their kind—the figures are exceptionally large, and it seems not improbable that the artists sought to produce likenesses of the principal warriors figuring on their canvas. At all events the work is very firm, delicate and minute, and of its value as a historical monument there can be no doubt. There is now a prospect of the scrolls passing into the possession of the Imperial Household, the fitting repository of such national relics.

in Flight.

Constable John T. Dolan of Justice Patrick Kane's court, assisted by his Deputy, Thomas Hand, served two writs of attachment on T. T. Fanning's circus, located just one block south of Robert avenue in Carondelet, yesterday afternoon late, and now have a story to relate that is amusing in its details. The writs were issued upon application of Geo. E. Bell and James C. Clark and were for 88'. 30 and $100 respectively.

It was something new to serve a writ on an entire circus, menagerie, side show and all, including the wayworn Circassian girl, and Messrs. Dolan and Hand drove gaily down to the place where Mr. Fanning's circus has been running for the past week. They did not at the time fear the striped zebra or the hissing snakes, and drove up at the entrance to the place with a great deal of eclat, jumping out of the vehicle and walking past the ticket taker as though he was so much clay, put there merely for the purpose of ornamentation and display. Walking in they took a seat until after the afternoon performance, which was taking place at the time of their arrival. The trained mule threw the prepared clown and the educated dogs jumped over chairs, crawled through barrels and stood on their heads.

Tom Hand thought the trained mule would just about satisfy the claim for $87.50, and accordingly made up his mind to give his muleship a few lessons in "horseback" training.

He did, and to-day he limps around and tells his friends that he sprained his ankle

CONSTABLE DOLAN'S STOET.

This morning, Constable Dolan was found in his office on Market street and told a most wonderful experience with dogs, mules and circus people generally.

"As soon as the afternoon performance was over," said Constable Dolan, "Tom and I went into the ring and asked for Mr. Fanning or his wife, Millie Merette Fanning, who was made a party to the attachment. They were not hard to find and soon I had read the writ to both. They did not seem to be in the least worried over the matter, and I began to think that everything would pass over peaceably. The dog professor was playing with his pets and a colored boy was rubbing down the trained mule. While standing there an idea struck me. If we were to take the dogs and mule there would not be any show but the snakes, zebra and Circassian girl, and would thus cause the loss of his best features. I thought this would induce Fanning to pay up sooner than he would otherwise. Tom thought the sname way and we proposed to Fanning that we take those two features as security for the bill.

"All right,' said Fanning with a smile.
"It old Hand to take charge of that mule while I looked after the dogs, as I could always handle canines. But I must admit that I didn't handle those—they handled me.

completely and for some time. I told the dog professor that it would be necessary for him to part with his pets for a short time at least. He looked at me rather hard for a few minutes and then walked over to where Fanning was standing. The latter nodded and smiled, and the professor came back. Opened the kennel and fessor came back, opened the kennel and told me that all I would have to do was to call them. This I did, and they came rompcall them. This I did, and they came romping and barking at me, catching my legs between their forelegs. I thought to start away from the little brutes when I discovered that it was near impossible for me to move. Making a desperate effort I apparently freed myself; only to be caught by one of the dogs and go tumbling into the dust of the ring. As is known I am rather rotund and it took some minutes for me to recover my equilibrium. In the meantime the dogs walked all over me, In the meantime the dogs walked all over me, solling my collar, dilapidating my shirt and dirtying my clothes. According to a preconceived idea Tom Hand, the deputy, made a dive for the trick mule, which he proposed to carry away as a trophy of the power of man's ingenuity. But, according to his story, the mule was victor by all odds, and Tom will never again boast of his ability to ride "mule-back."

"At first," began Mr. Hand, "I tried to lead the mule away, but not one step would he go. One of the circus people told me to ride him, that he would walk right along that way. Throwing myself astride him I started off but he only went galloping around the ring, and no amount of pulling would induce him to turn toward the entrance. At last he stopped right in the midst of his wild career, but I didn't, until I landed on he ground in front of him. The dogs were making a noise with Polan and I thought that perhaps this was the cause of the strange action of the mule. I tried again with the same result, only that the fall was more severe than the first. There is no use talking, I're had my dose of attaching circuses and am willing to give some younger man a chance to winglery and renown by riding the trick mule."

some younger man a chance to win glory and renown by riding the trick mule."

Getting the worst of the affair the constables held an earnest consultation and decided that they would place a watchman in charge and leave affairs as they were. This morning Fanning appeared in court and paid the costs and bills, the attachments being duly cancelled, and both Dolan and Hand solemnly aver that they do not wish to have anything more to do with trained circus animals.

A Slave of Jeff Davis. An old negro, past three score and ten while on the witness stand in the Second Dis trict Police Court this morning, told a strange story, saying that at one time and for more than ten years he served Jef-ferson Davis, the lamented head ferson Davis, the lamented head of the late Confederacy, as a slave. He gave his name as Reuben Davis, and said that he lived in the alley between Sixth and Seventh and Wash and Carr, and that he and his present wife were married shortly after he came to St. Louis nine years ago. After Judge Paxton had heard the testimony he fined the prisoner is and costs, but stayed execution on a promise of good behavior.

In explaining the matter afterward, Davis, who claims to have been living for the past eighty-eight years, said that his dignity was forever ruined by being brought into a police court "where so many other niggers git," as he put it. In speaking of the personal habits of Jefferson Davis, old Reuben said that during his master's residence in Richmond he (Reuben) was his body servant, and that "old massa used to make me trim his toe and finger nails ebry mornin'." After the war was over Reuben thought it would be real nice to be free and left his old master, of whose death he heard only a few days ago. and Seventh and Wash and Carr, and that he now, as it always has been, no matter how disguised by pretended regard for laws and treaties or for the rights and welfare of the Indians, a fight to prevent a rich and populace new State from occupying one of the fairest and most fertile sites within the ommercial domain of St. Louis.

But the opposition is now evidently in its last ditch. Instead of pleading for the Indians and for a literal fulfillment of Indian treaties, even to the extent of dedicating to perpetual solitude an agricultural rea as valuable as that of Kansas, the cry now is for the repudiation of an obligation worth many times the stipulated amount. instead of the cry that we are wronging that the Indians are getting the advantage of us and robbing the United States Govrnment of several millions of dollars by rirtue of an act passed by both houses of ongress and approved by the President.

If, as alleged by those who wish to keep white settlers barred out as long as possible, this land was bought from the Indians by the Government and paid for long ago, and if the Indian title was so extinguished by the treaty of cession as to open it to settlement long ago without further payment, why was it not opened? Why have the terms of cession so long obliged the Government to expel white squatters from those lands by force of arms, and een cited so successfully to restrain Congress from passing any act opening the and to settlement without further pay-

St. Louis has been too indifferent to the incubus imposed upon her growth by the dedication of this broad and beautiful land to solityde and savagery while Congress and the Government were clearing the Indians out of the Northwest and creating half-a-dozen new States therein for the benefit of Chicago. Our city should no longer tolerate any trifling, pettifogging of dilatory haggling with this question. Every foot of that land is needed for a million industrious but landless farmers whose occupation of it would in ten years repay the United States Government nundred fold the cost of paying the Indians a fair price for it. And such occupation would give more increase to the population, the industries and the commerce o St. Louis in the first ten years than they fore the fall over 100,000 workingmen will have now boast of in the last twenty.

THE latest original package decision o the Supreme Court is simply a distinct affirmation of the right of the States, with the express consent of Congress, to regulate interstate commerce to an extent which would be unconstitutional without the express consent of Congress. It distinctly affirms the power of Congress to confer upon the States as much as it pleases of that control over interstate distinct reversal of the Supreme Court's former position that no act of Congress

As it is necessary to aggregate the output of several small mines to make a shipment this treasury regulation forces the owners of these small mines to look elsewhere than to this country for a market. So last winter 115,000 tons of silver-lead raw ores were sent from a point on the Mexican Central Railroad in the State of Durango, by rail to New Orleans, and thence by steamer to Hamburg, Germany. McKinleyites Change Front.

From the Chicago Tribune (Rep.)
The McKinley bill has been in force over seven months, but that increase of wages which was promised has not come or is not visible. There seem to be as many men in need of work as last September. Some indus-tries have been depressed rather than stimu-lated—notably the wool-growing ones. The imports of foreign competitive woolens have not stopped in spite of the higher duties, but have increased. The good things which were promised have not come to pass. The McKin-leyites were poor phophets. The New York Tribune was one of the papers which defended the McKinley bill because it would stop foreign now is for the repudiation of an obligation imports of competitive manufactures, but it treated by an act of Congress to pay the has turned a somerset and is defending the Indians a certain sum for certain lands new tariff against the charge that it will suppress foreign trade—the very thing it hoped it would do. Why the Party Wants Blaine.

From the Philadelphia Times.

For the first time in Blaine's public career it is overtowering statesmanship—states-manship that makes him stand out single from all his fellow Republican leaders—that has forged him to the front as a presidential candidate. Heretofore he has seized upor passing political expedients to popularize himself; but now he is the only one of the party leaders who has found a hopeful way for the party out of the slimy and hated em-brace of monopoly greed. Secretary Blaine's statesmanship towered above all the party leaders in the last Congress when he, singlehanded and alone, appealed to the country by his letters to Senator Frye against the opessive McKinley tariff bill, and it was his ability and courage alone that finally forced the reciprocity feature of the bill upon most reluctant so-called protection leaders. The party suffered the most sweeping defeat of our political history on the tariff issue and Blaine's reciprocity is the only life-boat that survives the wreck.

"The Pauper Labor" Is Coming

From the Boston Globe.

Some of the Republican politicians are still harping on the merits of the McKinley tariff as a measure designed for the protection of American labor against the pauper labor of Europe, but facts that cannot be denied are daily disproving this. All the industries of Europe, which have been injuriously affected by our tariff, are compelling their discharged workmen to seek employment here, and before the year has closed our labor market will be overstocked by the very pauper labor of other lands, in consequence of which wages will fall, for capitalists will naturally avail themselves of the surplus labor the McKinley tariff has placed at their disposal. It is well known that the emigrant steamers are al-ready engaged full for the summer, and beinded in the United States.

The Popular "Unrest."

From the New York WORLD.

McKinley and Quay and Ingalls found out what it meant last fall, and it is quite likely that the lesson will be repeated this year and author. next. It would be very curious indeed if the eople were entirely restful under the present condition of things-if the workingmen were content with decrease of wages, the farmers with increase of mortgages, manufacturers with taxed materials and merchants and mariners with a barbarous policy of restraint and restriction. It is, therefore, commerce which the Constitution vests not strange that the unrest of all classes is ing the "spooks" with reference to the exclusively in Congress. DRAWN TO SUPPORT HIS WIFE.

The Strange Story Developed by a Divorce Proceeding-Heckelmann, in His Return to His Wife's Petition, Admits Writing the Worthless Checks-Here

Probably the strangest return that has ever been made in a divorce suit is on file in the Sheriff's office. It was made by Bernard F. Heckelmann, whose wife brought suit for divorce against him at the April term divorce against him at the April term of the Circuit Court. She asks for a separation and the restoration of her maiden name, Mamie Boehman, on the grounds of his misdeeds and descrition of her. The misdeeds alleged are the writing by him of several forged and fraudulent checks, and she alleges that when his offenses were discovered and prosecution was about to follow he abandoned her and fied the State.

HECKELMANN'S RETURN.

To these charges the defendant makes the following remarkable return:

I acknowledge the charges of forgeries and worthless checks, but deny the charges of fleeing from the State or abandoning my wife.

BERNAND F. HECKELMANN.

The case is as remarkable as the return.

The plaintiff alleges in her petition that she married Heckelmann on Nov. 27, 1890, in this city, and on that very day he forged a check drawn on the German Savings Institution city, and on that very day he forged a check drawn on the German Savings Institution for $63.%. He also drew up and signed a check on that bank the same day for $58 when he had no account there so the petition avers. On Nov. 29, 1890, he drew a check on the same bank for $100. The check was payable to his own order and bore his signature. This he had a friend of his family indorse and cash it is alleged. His next offense, as recited in the petitition, was committed on Dec. $, 1890, when he drew up a check when he drew up a check for $75, payable to the order of a man named Krueger. To pay the money this check called for he is alleged to have forged another check for $200. The two last named checks, like all the others, were named checks, like all the others, were drawn on the German Savings Institution. The wife alleges in her petition for divorce that although able to work and offered a position, he preferred to support her by writing fraudulent and forged checks. She stated in her petition that she believed him to be at El Paso, Tex. The papers were accordingly sent to El Paso, Tex., for service, and yesterday afternoon they were handed over the Sheriff's desk to Chief Deputy Pete Daily. They had not been malled back, but delivered by an officer in person.

Mr. John B. Roeder, the attorney for Mrs.
Heckelmann, was seen to-day about the case.

"I cannot understand that return," he remarked. "Why any sane man should make it puszles me. I have never met Mr. Heckelmann and know nothing of his mental capacity, but this act of his is certainly peculiar. He is back in the city, I understand. In fact, I saw a letter from him a week ago in which he spoke of returning here. The letter was written at El Paso, and he writes an excellent letter, too. I think that his admissions of the forgeries and fraudulent checks will be sufficient to give his wife the divorce, as they will be adjudged indignities sufficient to render intolerable the condition of any sensitive, refined woman. Heckelmann comes of a nice family, his parents living in the naishborhood of Texas and Chouteau avenues. As the petition alleges he commenced writing forged and fraudulent checks the day he was married. He paid for his wedding suit with a forged check, one of the leading clothing houses here being the recipient. He also paid for some goods he received with a check drawn on the Germann Savings Institution, when he never had an account there in his life. The last forged check of $200 was written to take up none of the others before it should be presented. Another check of $100, which he drew up, he had a friend of the family indorse and then cash. When away he even wrote the bank tellings them to please honor the checks."

The roll was then called, after which a committee on credentials was appointed. Fending the report of this committee the convention took a recess of thirty minutes.

THE MILLERS' PICNIC.

General Chairman George Bain of the mil-lers' picnic has completed all arrangements for the annual jollification which takes place at Montesano next Thursday. Especial slow. I guess the track was muddy, but oh, Jasper! they played a walk and you ought to have seen the crowd. The orchestra commenced to play a little at one end, then at the other and then in the middle, and sloould just sit there and see 'em cuttin' up at the post, and the minute they were off every man in that stand straightened up like there was a winning in it for him.

'I never heard anything like it except the first time I heard Scalchi sing. I borrowed $1 and went up in the gallery and leaned right over the railing waiting for her to come out and the minute I saw her in the back-streten I began to feel good all over, and when she commenced to sing—Lord, Lord, your father just sat there and watched her. She struck a high note and froze to it. The conductor tried to shut her off, but she was running for the wire and the jock couldn't pull her. Well, so help me gracious, I could have fallen right over that railing and I didn't care whether they caught me or not. I didn't want any next. You can bet your life, Jasper, your father will play Scalchi straight every time.''

And he walked off singing:

Will Sail UNDER OTHER FLAGS.

LONDON, June 1.—A dispatch from Vancouver says that parties interested in the Behring Sea fisheries are known to be getting ready to sail under the German or Italian flags in the event of a close time arrangement between Great Britain and the United States. The sealers had made ready for a grand harvest this season, and do not feel like being balked whatever the two nations may agree upon. The same dispatch says that sensational rumors are afloat concerning a party of seal producers who have organized to raid the American Islands and carry off seal skins. In England the sentiment on the bill is divided although it is certain to pass, as a majority of both Liberals and Tories favor it. The close time will seriously interfere with the skin-dressing industry, an important one the skin-dressing industry, an important one in London and add considerably to the cost of seal skins the coming winter.

Worldly Amusements explained the meaning of its recommendation of judicious disciplina which it was yesterday instructed to modify. Its reference to progressive euchre as reconstructed was read and, after reference to the deliverances of previous assemblies, Dr. Condit, a member of the committee thought only the first resolution which was a reference to former deliverances of assembly was needed. The final form deprecated all amusements in which Christians cannot engage in Christ's name.

The Finance Committee reported through Elder Johnson. Receipts were 33,000. It was recommended that Elder McCook of New York be appointed to fill a vacancy. In the case of the church at Jackson-ville a committee of five, Dr. John Hall chairman, was appointed to raise $7,800 to reimbutes churches for its surrender to the Southern Presbyterian Church, at recommendation of the Assembly, of property amounting to $6,600, and, with interest, some $7,800. This church was loyal to the union when it cost something, and is liable to dis unless this debt is paid.

The committee report on systematic benevolence reported an increase of some $22,000 in the gifts of the living. The total of the benevolent contributions of the church for the year were $2,630,771. Recommendations to contribute regularly and on system to all the boards were adopted. Dr. Jos. T.

READ THE OPINIONS OF SOME WELL-KNOWN CITIZENS AND GOOD HOUSEKEEPERS ON OUR GAS STOVES:

Simmons Hardware Co.: GENTLEMEN-In response to your lines of the 12th, I answer as follows: The "Success" Gas Stove, one of which is in use at my home, is a success in every sense of the word; clean, economical, never out of order. It is a blessing to the woman in the kitchen, and a comfort to the others in the house. I heartily recommend it to every one contemplating the purchase of a gas stove, believing it the best that's made. WM. M. TAMBLYN.

Simmons Hardware Co.:

GENTLEMEN-We have used the "Success" Gas Stove in our kitchen for a year with great comfort. Often for weeks at a time we've not had a fire lighted in the coal stove. It is economical and satisfactory in every way. GEO. O. CARPENTER, JR., per C. G. C.

Simmons Hardware Co.: GENTLEMEN-I take much pleasure in recommending the "Success" Gas Stove, as I have found it a most comfortable and economical acquisition to my domestic happiness. My wife could not do without it if it cost twice or three times the money.

Simmons Hardware Co.:

GENTLEMEN-I have your letter in which you ask my opinion of the "Success" and "Perfect" Gas Stoves. I am using one of the "Success" stoves at my house, and find it exceedingly economical and convenient. I am also using a large number of the stoves in the towns in which our gas properties are located, and our consumers pronounce them economical, labor-saving and generally satisfactory for cooking purposes.

GENTLEMEN-I have been using one of your "Perfect" Gas Stoves in my family for the past year. It has given us the best of satisfaction, consuming very little gas and fact I don't see how it could be improved upon. We would not do without one Yours Respectfully,

Two Systems-The Alleged Mobile & Ohio Sale-An Official Denial of the Report-Increase of L. & N. Stock-Railroad News.

NEW YORK, June 2.—The World says: From undercurrent sources, information is gained sufficient to warrant the belief that two of the most important systems in the South—the Louisville & Nashville and East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia—will at no distant date be practically under one management or operated jointly. It is not long since the latter named road absorbed the NEW YORK, June 2.-The WORLD Says: From since the latter named road absorbed the Queen & Crescent system, and from present is on for the joining of forces of the two lines above named. Whether a direct consolidation is to be the outcome cannot be stated at the present time, but sumcient to say that a mutual understanding in the division of the territory and traffic will be one object attained if no more. For the past month or more high officials of the two lines have been busily engaged in the collection of tonnage statistics from every important traffic point south of the Potomac and Ohio Rivers, which are touched by the two sys-tems. It is a well-known fact that it has been for some years the dream of the two tems. It is a well-known fact that it has been for some years the dream of the two Presidents of the lines named to so consolidate the roads that the traffic of the entire South could be controlled by the one system. It is believed by those who have watched the progress of affairs of the Sonthern roads since Jay Gould became interested in Richmond Terminal, that the present working of the Louisville & Nashville and East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia, moves another step in the direction of Mr. Gould's consolidation scheme, which is to combine the trunk lines of the South into one gigantic corporation. The East Tennessee, in conjunction with its newly acquired Queen & Crescent, parallels the Louisville & Nashville at almost every important point in the South.

The monkey house, bear pit, sea lion pond, carnivora house, and other de-partments of the zoo were surrounded all day by children, and the boys and girls never tired of feeding the elephant and monkeys with peanuts and popcorn. THE T. P. A. IN SESSION.

ANNUAL MEETING COMMENCED TO-DAY AT HOSPITABLE LITTLE ROCK.

The Citizens of the "Rock" Spare No Ex-pense nor Pains to Make the Drummers Feel at Home—Gov. Eagle's Welcome—

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., June 2.—The elaborate and tasteful decorations on every street in Little Rock in honor of the national meeting of the Travelers' Protective Association here to-day, are the wonder and admiration of the 5,000 visitors now in the city. Traveling men who have visited the city for the first time are lavish in their praise of the hospitality and painstaking efforts of the people to make their visit enjoyable. During the forenoon several excellent bands have been parading the streets enlivening the occasion with choice music.

lent bands have been parading the streets enlivening the occasion with choice music.

At 11:05 President C. J. Hanks of the Arkansas division called the vast audience to order that had assembled at the Capital Theater, and Rev. S. A. Haines of Netherwood, N. J., founder of the Commercial Temperance League and chaplain of the Travelers' Protective Association, invoked divine blessings upon the meeting.

The opera-house was filled with members of the association, many of the prominent ladies and gentlemen of Little Rock being the stage were Goy. ladies and gentlemen of Little Rock being among the audience. On the stage were Gov. Eagle, Mayor Fletcher of Little Rock, the officers of the National Travelers' Protective Association and reporters of the leading newspapers of the Western States. Mr. C. A. Barcher, President of the Press Committee of the National T. P. A.; occupied a prominent place and was the center of attraction. Gov. Eagle welcomed the commercial travelers in a neat and appropriate address. C. J. Hanks, President of the Arkansas Division, introduced Mayor Fletcher as "Governor of Little Rock," which compliment the drummers received with storms of applause. The Mayor paid a glowing tribute to the organization, and concluded by informing the T. P. A. that the gates of the city were thrown down and that the word welcome was but a faint indication of the hospitality which he desired to extend.

Gov. Eagle then introduced President Mc.

The State meetings throughout the country have been well sitended, harmonious and productive of much good. The railroads have been very liberal with us. Among the concessions secured is a reduction of one half cent per mile over the St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern Railroad, which saves the commercial travelers over $20,000 each year. A great many railroads sell 1,000 mile tickets for $20, and I believe the time is not far distant when we will have a similar ticket on every railroad in the country. A great many railroads, at our request, are selling week-end tickets into various cities, that is one fare for the round trip, good going Saturday, returning Sunday night or Monday morning, one fare for the round trip, good going Saturday, returning Sunday night or Monday morning, one fare for the round trip. If each State division will take the matter up with the railroads is believe the roads will see its to their interest to sell these tickets. Late in the afternoon the Coroner decided to investigate the mystery, and he accordingly instructed the city undertakers to open the "grave." John Sheehan took a couple of grave-diggers out with him, and in a little while, after getting down about two feet, one of the shovels struck what sounded like a metallic coffin. A little more digging, however, disclosed a sewer pipe two feet in diameter and a couple of joints of which had been re-moved and the ends of the remaining pipe blocked with oaken boards and stuffed with old rags. ever since the stable crossed the Rocky Mountains. Dr. Crowley was summor Mountains. Dr. Crowley was summoned out to the track to see her, but found the filly to be all right. Any doubts there may have been left in her trainer's mind concerning her condition were effectually dispelled yesterday when she made five-eighths of a mile in 1:02½, a remarkably good trial. The filly beat everything on the coast of her age before coming here, and in Cultivarie is recarded as a second El Bio Rev. coast of her age before coming here, and in California is regarded as a second El Rio Rey, to whom she is a half-sister, both being out of the sterling brood mare Marian. The meeting between Yo Tambien and Mr. Corrigan's great colt Huron in the Great Western Stakes should prove a splendid contest. It is also claimed that there are some other two-year-olds at the track who are apt to beat both of them.

The track was very fast yesterday, faster perhaps than it has ever been before. One horse who has never been able to make much time traveled a mile in 1:45, which is far better than he has ever run in a race. All much time traveled a mule in 140, which is far better than he has ever run in a race. All the horses seem to be in splendid condition, and a great meeting is looked for, as so many horses will be on hand that none of them will have to be stabled outside the track.

A JOCKEY SEVERELY INJURED. CHICAGO, Ill., June 2.—Matthew Monaghan, the well-known jockey, who rode the horse Riley last year, and was under contract with Corrigan during the Lexington meeting, met with a serious and probably fatal accident at an early hour this morning. He was lying with a serious and probably fatal accident at an early hour this morning. He was lying on a massive slab in a Turkish bath room at the Brevoort House, and went to sleep. While sleeping he in some way fell from the slab to the floor, striking on his head, and cutting a gash about six inches long over his left tem-ple. He became delirious almost immedi-ately, and it recuired three men to take, him ple. He became delirious almost immediately, and it required three men to take him to the sleeping rooms. Doctors found that he had sustained a concussion of the brain, Monaghan is 21 years old, and lives at Sandy Hill, N. Y. He has been a jockey during the last four years. The boy was in the employ of Corrigan until a few weeks ago, when he left him, although he rode Brockwood in his last race in Chicago a few days ago.

The unfair claims made by Jim Corbett and his adherents that he was robbed of his fight with Jackson, and would have whipped the latter in few more rounds had not the fight been stopped by Referse Cook to save members and officers of the California Club who had backed the negro at heavy odds, has forced that he was not given time to win is abourd. The men fought for two hours without either doing much damage to the other. Then they stood in the ring for two hours more without doing any fighting at all to speak of. After failing to whip Jackson in two hours' actual fighting, Corbett was allowed an additional two hours by the California Club to finish his man, but made no attempt to do so, merely killing time.

The Baltimore club, headed by the astute Billy Barnie, he of the bald-eagle tame, arrived this morning and are quartered at the Lindell Hotel. In speaking of his club this morning, Mr.

YESTERDAT'S GAMES. After seven consecutive victories the Browns concluded that it was about time to drop a game, and made five errors in the first inning yesterday. The Athletics were not slow in taking advantage of the fact and piled up five runs. This virtually settled the contest, as the Browns made no effort to raily until the ninth, when safe hits by Lyons, Comiskey and Boyle, Egan's base on balls, and Stivett's sacrifice netted two runs. The risitors put up a beautiful fielding game, not an error being scored against them. Hall leverness at third were noticeable features. DECLARED OFF. The Prospective Duel Between Two Prom-

New York, June 2 .- "My card, sir," and 'mine, sir.' These were the heated exclamations of two men in the handsome rooms of the Senate Club, Williamsburg, across the East River. They were intended to lead to a duel, which will not, however, take place. The names of the challengers have been carefully guarded by those who were present at the exchange of cards, but rumor has started their names on the rounds of general gossip. The challenged is said to have been a guest of the club, once a Prussian officer, but now a resident of the most fashionable section of Brooklyn, Von Gerichten by name. The card changing episode brought to conclusion a long night of poker playing and looking upon the wine when it froths. Though an American wine when it froths. Though an American citizen, the Prussian gentleman has great love for his native country, and when reflections were jokingly made upon the conduct of the Prussians during the Franco-Prussian war, one member of the club asserting that the poor Schwabians were hustled to the front to be slaughtered while the Prussians did the thinking and showy work of the campaign, he lost his temper and the lie and cards were exchanged. Both gentlemen chose their seconds from those present. As far as can be learned Robert present. As far as can be learned Robert Steldon and Jack Fitzgerald were chosen to act in that capacity. Geo. Hickford, a rather well-known resident, while denying that he was the other principal, looks wise and refuses to divulge the true names of the and refuses to divinge the true names of the intending duelists. The Prussian duly sent a written challenge to the member of the club, which was received by the latter's second. More correspondence passed and the weapons were chosen. The challenged party, who had ond. The latter gentleman became alarmed and secured an interview with Capt. Gorman of the Clymes Street Station. A warrant was sworn out at the Four Courts this morning, charging Anderson W. defendant is a negro, 24 years old, and a painter by trade. His victim was a young mulatto girl named Jonnie Williamson, who ives with her aunt, Mrs. Maggie Christian, lives with her aunt, Mrs. Maggie Christian, at 4119 San Francisco avenue. It seems that for some time Young was a favored suitor for the girl's hand and was often in her company. Recently the two had a falling out, and the girl refused to again engage herself to her over-ardent suitor. Young labored long and zealously, but his persuasion availed him naught. Made desperate by his rejection he on Sunday night attacked the girl as she stood at the gate in front of her residence, cutting open her head with a sharp stone. The girl was sent to the City Hospital. Young was arrested by Off. City Hospital. Young was arrested by Officers Cleaveland and Stewart of the Fifth Dis

Kraemer's Denial.

Joseph H. Kraemer, whose nomination as Jailer was confirmed at the last meeting of the Council, denies the report that he has entered into an agreement to make F. introduced in the Reichstag for a reduction of the import duties on breadstuffs of from 50 to 75 per cent. The agricultural interest has heretofore successfully opposed this, but the latest advices state that the probabilities are that this opposition will soon cease.
